Vocabulary Fun!

Can you see all the nouns, adjectives, verbs and adverbs in the paragraph below?

Circle all the nouns in red, the adjectives in blue, the verbs in green and the adverbs in yellow!

A dogfight is a type of fight in the air between two enemy planes. The two planes would fly around in the sky trying to shoot at each other. In World War Two, lots of dogfights would happen between the American or British pilots against German pilots. The two sides would be ducking and diving and ferociously concentrating on aiming their guns at their enemy. Often, if one side shot the other side down, the plane would start to drop to the ground. Before the plane could crash, the pilot would press a button to eject from their aeroplane. The hood of the plane would open quickly and the pilot would float away from the plane into the sky. To land safely, the pilot would pull on a rip cord on his clothing which would release a gigantic parachute from out of his backpack. It would open above his head and would help him to drift safely to the ground.

Spelling

Can you try to learn all of the words below? Once you've studied them all, ask an adult to test you on your spelling!

Dogfight	Spitfire
Hurricane	Bomber
Mustang	Invasion
Allies	Axis
Propellor	Aeroplane
Parachute	Luftwaffe